REUNION OF VETERANS

In Louisville Will Break Records For Attendance.

50,000 ARE EXPECTED.

Many Hotels Already Have Every Room Engaged.

The vanguard of more than 50,000 visitors, 9,000 veterans and 3,000 sponsors and maids of honor will begin to arrive in Louisville this week to take part in the Confederate reunion next week. Notification has already been received that forty-eight special trains will steam into the city, bringing veterans, their friends and families. Other specials are being made up from distant parts of the country, indicating that the reunion this year will in all likelihood eclipse anything of a similar nature held in Louisville in many years. Col. Thos. D. Osborne, Chairman of the Press Committee, says that every room in the Galt House, Willard and Fifth Avenue Hotels had been engaged for the whole time of the encampment. There are twenty-seven hotels in the city, however, and those who cannot be accommodated otherwise will be able to secure rooms with private families. Many of those coming have relatives in Louisville and will remain with them during their stay here. Arrangements have been made for an abundance of cots, and there is no fear but what all comers can be accommodated.

BUSY WEEK

Is This, in All Branches of Tobacco Business.

The tobacco business in all its branches is moving along with a rush this week. The weed is in good order for handling and receipts are very heavy. Sales on the breaks and privately will probably be heavier than for any week since the market opened up. Loose receipts on the floor Tuesday were large and the prospects are that they will be much heavier today. Prices for the loose article rule about the same as the quotations of last week, all tobacco commanding satisfactory figures.

The association warehouses are very busy receiving and prizing for the market.
